Fundraiser

This fun evening will include:

Math- Uncertainty - Points

In bowling, scoring can be tricky. You get ten turns, or frames, and try to knock down as many pins each turn as possible. You get two rolls of the ball for each turn (frame) to knock down all ten pins. When you roll the ball and knock down pins, each pin you knock down earns you a point, and you can also score extra points by hitting "strikes" or "spares". A strike is when you knock down all ten pins at your first attempt in a single frame. If this happens your turn is over, since you knocked down all possible pins for that frame. A spare is when you fail to knock down all ten pins at your first attempt in a single frame, but manage to clear the remaining pins at your second attempt. Spare: 10 bonus points + the number of pins you knock down for your first roll in the next frame. Strike: score 10 bonus points + the number of pins you knock down for the next two rolls of the ball.

What is my score if I these are the number of pins I knock down per roll, in order, for a game?
3,2,4,5,9,1,9,1,10,2,3,10,10,9,1,0,3
